Merry-Go-Round— Presidential Envoy Robertson Worried Over Post-Truce Talks

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Here is the inside story of how Assistant Secretary of State Walter Robertson finally persuaded President Syngman Rhee to accept a truce in Korea. The story also gives the key to why Robertson and Secretary of State Dulles are flying back to Korea — for they regard the truce as a mere stopgap which could cause the United States more headaches than assets.

In fact Robertson, speaking privately, has been less than enthusiastic about the truce.

"The truce," he said, "will present much more difficult problems than it will solve, when you consider the over-all position of the United States in the struggle with Russia. However, I do not make policy. I carry it out. If you know of a more frustrated man than yours truly, I would like to meet him."

Walter Robertson, incidentally, is one of the real finds of the Eisenhower Administration. Shrewd, patient, with a persuasive personality, it is easy to see how he finally won Syngman Rhee into his corner.

Robertson wooed him largely by listening. He let the aged president of Korea pour his heart out.

"The old man is a great patriot," Robertson confided to friends. "Stubborn, yes, but not for himself, only for his country. I was told that the way to handle Rhee was to go in and pound the table. But I said: 'If table-pounding will do it, why hasn't he been brought into line before?'"

Sore At The Army

"When I first met President Rhee it was in company with General Mark Clark, at which time Rhee exploded: 'You charge me with being a violator. Just what have I violated?'"

However, instead of table-pounding, Robertson sat and listened.

"I listened to Dr. Rhee for days at a time. Finally I brought him round to the idea that the way to obtain the unity of Korea was to continue with the United States, not commit his country to national suicide."

Robertson reported to his superiors that his negotiations were almost upset by the army's radio in Tokyo which kept broadcasting American news accounts of his talks. Rhee thought that since the news accounts were broadcast over the army's radio network, they must be official, didn't realize that an army sergeant merely picked up the news as cabled to Tokyo by the press associations.

Thus just at the time Dr. Rhee seemed most ready to compromise, the army radio in Tokyo reported him as unyielding as a ramrod. Rhee's reaction was that the United States was playing tricks to get him to yield further.

What China Wants

The war Robertson finally persuaded Rhee to cooperate was by arguing that what Communist China really wants is something much more important than Korea. It wants trade with Japan and the rest of the world; and especially it wants access to the tin, rubber and raw materials of Indo-China and the Malays.

Therefore, Robertson argued, China will trade Korean unity for these bigger objectives.

These objectives, however, present serious problems for the USA, and this is the chief reason Robertson is flying back to Tokyo and Seoul with Secretary Dulles.

"The barren hills of North Korea mean little to the Chinese," Robertson told friends, "compared to their major objectives. That's why the Chinese were so anxious to sign a truce, also why our problems are just beginning."

"The western trade embargo is affecting them much more than we realize, and they want to get rid of it. Also they want a seat on the United Nations Security Council so badly that it hurts. If they can get some of these things, they should gladly toss away the barren hills of North Korea."

That is the real reason why Robertson has mixed feelings about a truce. Dr. Syngman Rhee, he thinks, will get what he wants — the unity of Korea. But China will then begin a drive for what she really wants — the vast riches of Southeast Asia, the tin and rubber of the Malays, the wealth of Indo-China, the quinine, the spices, the rubber of Indonesia. This was the main goal of Japan during the war, and it's the main goal of Communist China today.

"This is an area which hates its past rulers, the British, the French and the Dutch," diagnosed Robertson. "But this area desires the Chinese. Because the Chinese have stood up against the western world."

This, Robertson explains, is why he is so worried about the political peace conference which follows the Korean truce.

Asked whether Red China would win its cherished ambition of admission to the United Nations, Robertson replied:

"We will be one of 16 nations to sit at the peace table. We will have no more votes than anyone else. If I had to make a bet, I'd bet that the Chinese would get what they want."

This 'Wonderful Mother' Crushed Her Son's Manhood

By Muriel Lawrence

At 24, Alice met Steve. A highly competent research chemist, he was also good looking, reserved and shy. On their third date, Alice began falling in love with him.

Then Steve's firm gave him an extraordinary promotion. The next evening, Alice celebrated it by cooking him dinner. She was lighting his after-coffee cigarette for him when he said earnestly: "You must stop giving me the credit for this break. It's Mother who deserves it. She's made me. If you knew how she's scrimped and saved and pushed . . ."

"But your mother didn't do the research on your new formula," his girl protested. "You did. Though it's right to credit her with what she's done, isn't it just as right to credit yourself with what you've done? I think you're wonderful, Steve. At your age . . ."

But Steve couldn't listen to his girl tell him how wonderful he was. It made him so uncomfortable that an hour later he was still trying to convince her that his mother was the wonderful person in his family.

So it was odd that when the Wonderful Mother telephoned, Steve didn't want to speak to her. Instead, he reached hastily for his coat. "Tell her I'm not here," he said to Alice. "Tell her I'm on the way home. I shouldn't have stayed so late."

Alice didn't marry Steve. Nobody has married him. He still lives with the Wonderful Mother who "made" him. When she checks on him, he still lies to her. In his 38 years as the product of a Wonderful Mother, it has never occurred to him that we do not love those to whom we lie.

It has never occurred to him that we distrust and hate those whose demands force us to lie to them. It has never occurred to him that the load of obligation placed on him by the woman who "made" him has crushed manhood out of him.

As I write this, I know that the Wonderful Mothers who live on the incense of sons' devotion will not fit Steve's story to themselves. They can't afford to. For such mothers have built their lives on vindictive power over men. To relinquish it means the collapse of the building.

So this column is not written for them. It is written for the young mothers of small boys who are dependent and trustful of their love and support. It is a warning against the corruption of that little-boy dependence and trust. It is a warning against the destruction of life by those who are supposed to nourish it.

Here's Way To Get Your Husband To Take You Out

By Ruth Millett

Maybe you're bored with staying home night after night and you've made up your mind that tonight you and your husband are going out.

Well, if you don't want opposition to the idea, don't use any of the following methods. A lot of wives use these methods and then wonder why they have such a hard time getting George to go anywhere.

Don't begin by feeling sorry for yourself. If you start out, "You know it's been ages since we've gone anywhere in the evening," then your self-pity will be showing. And your husband will be more annoyed at the self-pity than interested in taking you out.

Don't start out with an accusation: "You may like to sit at home night after night, but then you're down town all day." If you do you'll hear how tired your husband is and how he likes a little rest at the end of a hard day.

Don't try to get him into a general discussion by some remark such as: "I've been thinking that we really ought to get out more often. We're getting into a rut, staying home all the time."

He'll want to know just what is wrong with staying at home, and before you know it, he will have convinced himself that staying home every night is the only sensible way to live.

Don't Be Vague—Be Positive

Don't sound vaguely unhappy and dissatisfied. You will if you start talking about how much fun you used to have and how dull life has been lately. A man doesn't relish the thought of taking out an unhappy woman just to see if he can't get rid of her discontent.

If all of those are wrong approaches, then what's a right one?

Have a definite plan. Offer it enthusiastically so that your attitude is simply that there is some place you want very much to go, not just to get away from home. Don't let your husband think this is the first step in a "we-must-get-out-more-often" campaign, but there is something interesting you want to do that very evening.

Make your suggestion positive and gracious as a social invitation and see if you don't get taken where you want to go with no argument.

Manners Make Friends

It may be easier to send out printed cards of acknowledgement to all those who send flowers to a funeral than for a member of the family to write each sender a note. But the printed card is not in good taste.

In matters of etiquette the easier way is not always the better way.

and occasionally persists into adult life. It is considered to be primarily a symptom of increased nervous tension. The cause of this nervous tension should be sought out and corrected, and an effort should be made also to be sure that the nutrition is adequate in all respects. It should disappear or at least lessen as time goes on, and particularly if the causes of the nervous tension can be removed.

Q—Does the constant use of mineral oil cause the loss of any vitamins from the body? M.L.

A—The regular use of mineral oil as a laxative certainly does have objections. From the standpoint of vitamins, it interferes with the absorption of those vitamins which are considered fat soluble. It may not destroy all of them but it may prevent adequate amounts from being absorbed.

The World Today— Sen. Taft Set Hard Pace

By JAMES MARLOW

In his 38 years no one worked harder on the Senate floor than the Ohio Republican. Taft believed that the people of many of the same people. But always a man, Dillon on any issue.

In those years, perhaps he is critical in American history, there were enormous differences of opinion in a country—ranging from the pre-war draft and aid to Britain to the postwar problems of the United Nations.

Beside the Laughing Water

A Romance by
LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

THE STORY: Little Gracie wonders what the Waylans will think when they learn that she is the woman they blame for the death of Giles Wayland, husband of Avis, father of Peg and Rowan, and brother of Gavin. What is worse, Little finds that she is fond of Gavin and that all the Waylans are fond of her.

XIII

AT 10 o'clock it was time for Little to return to Edgemere. Gavin offered to walk up the hill with her and, though she wished it were otherwise, she found herself out in the clear, moonlight night with him beside her, with the frost glistening on fields and hedges and the long bright streamers of the Northern Lights sweeping the winter sky.

They talked little, each thinking of the last time they had met. He asked her if she had ever gone canoeing again since that day and she told him of Archer's remedy and of how after her first few jittery moments she had lost her fear.

"I guess that's the remedy—Spartan but usually effective. What is Archer Fenn to you?" She looked at him, a bit startled. After all it was no concern of his.

"He's my friend," she spoke stiffly. "We were classmates in England."

He wondered. You see—I've been thinking of you a lot—ch, what's the use of lying? I've been thinking of you all the time ever since I fished you out of the drink and saw the sea-hag changing by the water's magic spell, into a girl."

"Please, I wish you wouldn't say these things to me."

"Why? Don't you like me?" "Yes—I like you, but . . ."

"I like you, but I like the way you've got into me some. I don't know what it is. I wanted to call you a hundred times and I just about had to lock myself in to keep from going to you."

She loved and feared to listen to these things which he said to her in a low, earnest voice. She wanted to stop him, wanted to run from him and yet his words held her—words so much like those Giles had spoken long ago and his voice was like his brother's—deep and resonant.

THEY crossed the common and it was—lost by the granite cross that he turned to her and drew her hard and close against him, his lips seeking hers. And this, that she had steeled herself against and had resolved to fight, found her suddenly weak and helpless and, more, wanting, even seeking, the ardor of his caress.

"No—" She broke from him at last, breathless, her eyes a-shine. "Please, no!"

"No?" His laugh was triumphant. "But we've done it. And it's what I wanted more than I've ever wanted anything. And you—there's nothing cold about you—why, you're all fire. How could you fool us so?"

She tried to think, to reason calmly, but there was no calmness in this moment, for the stars still tumbled about and her breath still came fast and in all her body was a warmth and a wonder that his love had made. She, too, had thought often of him, putting the thought away, trusting it down, denying it, so that now, the lid off, there was no resisting the tide that swept upon her.

But it led nowhere, this love of theirs. From where she stood she could see the plaque on the granite cross, almost read the last name on that list of the dead. He would hate her and think this a sacrifice, but it had been none of her choosing.

"I must get back to the school. And this—we must forget this—do you hear? I don't—"

"Forget it? Don't be foolish. There is no forgetting what I feel for you, Little—not in this life."

"You don't even know me—" "I've known you always. I mean you've always been with me somehow—the one I wanted, the woman I could give my life to. You won't deny me, will you?"

"But you—you had a wife—" He laughed bitterly. "If you'd call her that, let's not talk about it, now or ever. Believe me, it was nothing, less than nothing—"

"You must have thought—" Hadn't Giles said much the same thing to her, talking of his life with Avis? Had they both taken a beating from marriage—or was the fault in them? She didn't know what to do. She could end the whole thing right here and now by telling him that Giles, too, had loved her and said much the same things to her years ago. And Giles had lied. She could tell him of Giles's love for her, but she could not tell him why she had sent back the ring and put Giles out of her life.

SHE walked on quickly, letting him follow and catch up with her.

"You're not angry, are you?" "No—not angry. Only sad."

"But why?" "Oh, don't ask me. But this will get us nowhere and can lead nowhere."

"But I love you—" "I can't take your love."

"You don't say, though, that you don't want my love?" "Oh, let me be, won't you? I wish I'd never come here. I wish I'd never seen you—or anyone of your kind."

He took that wrong, thinking she alluded to the stories that went the rounds in Ashland about the wild Waylans. Some of the family, which had been here since earliest days, had been decidedly no bachelors. Far back there had been a bit of privateering—polite for piracy—against the French and then the Americans, of later years the odd ne'er-do-well and a few fair ladies fallen from grace.

"There is nothing wrong with us—fundamentally a new way." Gavin said laughing. "We all settle down."

Korea Assembly Backs Syngman Rhee's Demands

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—The South Korean National Assembly today unanimously backed President Syngman Rhee's demand that the Allies quit the impending Korean political conference if it fails within three months to reach agreement on unification of Korea.

The action apparently was designed to show a united front to U. S. Secretary of State Dulles, who arrives tomorrow for talks with Rhee.

The Assembly, in a three-point resolution, also demanded:

1. That the conference include only nations whose troops fought in the war.

2. Rejection of any unification plan that overrides the sovereignty of South Korea.

Rhee pledged Sunday he would cooperate with the conference so long as it "stands firm" on its objectives of Korean unification but at the same time indicated he will insist on the 90-day limit.

The conference is scheduled to start in late October. The United Nations General Assembly will begin discussions Aug. 17 to decide its makeup.

Rhee said that if the U. N. should "retreat" from the aim of unification, "we should then have to face the situation alone."

McCarthy Wants Probe on Korea Incompetency

CUMBERLAND, Wis. (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) said last night he is preparing a measure calling for a federal grand jury probe of individuals whose "criminal incompetence or treason" was responsible for loss of American lives in Korea.

The Wisconsin Republican spoke at a dinner celebrating the return home of M. Sgt. Rodney Mettner, 24, who saw two tours of duty on the Korean fighting front and was wounded in action three times.

McCarthy said thousands of young men paid with their blood in Korea because of incompetency and treason that resulted in ammunition shortages and decisions and orders which impaired forceful action by American troops, such as the failure to bomb bridges on the Yalu River.

Judge Boles had to straighten out a discussion at the barbershop by explaining that Congress had really been in session and that something had been going on since January besides Senator McCarthy's investigations.

Talk-Jansen Marriage Vows

At seven o'clock in the evening, July 18, Miss Myrtle Falk, daughter of Mrs. Selma Falk, Sweet Springs, became the bride of Mr. W. H. Jansen, Jr., Sweet Springs, at the Immanuel Lutheran Church in Sweet Springs. The Rev. R. Delvalant performed the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Paul Wolfe played a prelude off wedding music and accompanied Mr. Ruben Wright as he sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. LaVerne Falk, the bride wore a gown of white nylon organdy over taffeta designed length train. The embroidered net jacket was designed with Peter Pan collar and long tapering sleeves. Her elbow length veil was of silk illusion tulle from a tulle of seed pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations with streamers of stephanotis.

Mrs. Clarence Bancroft, matron of honor, wore a waltz length gown of yellow organdy over taffeta with matching picture hat. Her flowers were a colonial bouquet of orchid asters and yellow carnations.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Falk chose to wear a navy blue dress with white accessories. Mrs. Jansen, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in navy blue dress with black accessories. Their corsages were of white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony a supper was served in the church basement. A reception was held later at the home of the bride's parents.

When the couple left on a trip to the Lake of the Ozarks the bride was wearing a white linen dress with navy blue accessories complemented with a yellow carnation corsage.

They will reside in Kansas City.

When pressing, you need to go over double thicknesses such as seams, collars, cuffs and hems on the right side. To avoid a shine, press over two layers of cheese-cloth or tissue paper.

in the wide open fields of the post. There will be more of that training this week and part of the time there will be some of the nation's top "brass" at observers. Expected during the week are several two, three and four star generals of the U.S. Fifth Army. They will see what the guardsmen of Missouri and Kansas could do should they be called upon for active duty.

No Sedalia men have been injured during the first week. One of the cannon from here over-turned in a ditch near Truman, Minn., on the way to camp, but the truck pulling the cannon was not damaged and no man was even scratched.

While there have been several traffic accidents in the area near the camp, only two men from Camp Ripley have been hurt. Most of the accidents involved civilians. (You may have read of the 10 persons being killed in a two-car collision during Saturday morning's storm. That mishap took place near Little Falls, the town closest to the camp, just six miles away.)

Last Friday four Sedalia men were among a group of men honored for long service in the National Guard, some receiving credit for duty with the federal armed forces for part of their time. Master Sgt. Elwood Edwards received a bronze cluster to his long service medal, indicating 25 years of service. Col. Bledsoe received a 15-year long service medal. Master Sgt. Harold Anderson and Capt. Richard F. Shelly each received 10 year medals.

Last Friday morning 15 newsmen from Missouri representing newspapers and radio stations in all parts of the state were flown to Camp Ripley to observe the training program. As it turned out, we did very little observing, but we did get to see the camp and visit the men from our towns who are there.

Our first plane developed engine trouble and caused a four-hour delay. While another plane was being supplied. Our route had to be altered somewhat because of the bad engine, too, so we rode from Columbia to Dexter to Kansas City to Joplin to St. Joseph, all in Missouri, before taking off for Minnesota.

Arriving Friday at 7:55 p. m., we were too late to join former President Harry Truman as observers for the fire-power demonstration on Friday night. That must have been some show. The Guardsmen put on, firing every type of weapon, and almost every weapon, in a gigantic demonstration that took on the aspects of the granddaddy of all fireworks displays. We did get to attend the reception with Mr. Truman later Friday evening, however.

Saturday morning, after the heavy rain, the scheduled parade of all 7,000 men had to be cancelled.

Saturday afternoon the guardsmen were relieved of duty until Monday morning. And they started leaving camp in droves. Some were headed for Minneapolis, some north to International Falls, on the Canadian border. Some were heading in to Minneapolis, about 115 miles away. Others had decided to have a look at North Dakota. Still more grabbed their fishing rods and the favorite spinners and some of the famed fishing areas. Bass and walleye had been biting all week and it looked like a great weekend for sport.

Newsmen in our group toured the entire camp area Saturday afternoon, took in a show Saturday night and awakened Sunday to begin a long wait for a plane back home. The C-47 was due to leave at 8 a. m. Sunday, but at 2 p. m. we found it was grounded at Minneapolis because it could not land in the low overcast at Ripley. Then we went by bus (three from Minneapolis, boarded the plane at 6 p. m. and started home.

The pilot warned us of thunderstorms between Minnesota and home. And we saw them while they missed us. All across Iowa and into Northwest Missouri we could see the lightning off to our right. Those folks were getting showers and the temperatures were cool and nice.

We hoped it was like that at home. Then, heading into St. Joseph for our first stop, at 8:45 p. m. Sunday, the skies suddenly became clear, the temperature warm. Next stop was Kansas City and here, as soon as we set foot on the ground, we began peeling off our extra clothes.

A corduroy jacket was first to be shed and then came off the wool sweater that had been standing all the time at Ripley. We even wore it all day Sunday while seated around the log fire-place at headquarters.

These Sedalia men who have enjoyed a two-week stay in Minnesota will be glad to get back into houses with good roofs, into beds that are a bit softer than tent bunks, and to sit themselves down to a table of mother's or wife's cooking. But they are going to have plenty to say about the heat.

DAILY RECORD Ike, Other Leaders Pay Parting Tribute to Taft

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower and other leaders of the nation paid a solemn parting tribute to Sen. Robert A. Taft today at a state funeral in the stone rotunda of the national Capitol.

There were words of consolation from the scriptures and in prayers of Senate and House chaplains. There was a glowing eulogy from Taft's Ohio colleague, Sen. John W. Bricker. "In him were personified the noblest attributes of the republic — reverence of God and love of liberty."

For these services, the casket and catafalque holding the body of the fallen senator—died of cancer Friday in New York—were moved to the west side of the rotunda. Yesterday, while thousands of plain people paid their homage, it had rested in the exact center of the vast chamber beneath the massive Capitol dome.

Temporary chairs for 900 were in place for the President and Mrs. Eisenhower, members of the Taft family, Cabinet members, Supreme Court justices, military chiefs, diplomats and the entire membership of Senate and House.

The service began at 11 a. m. with passages from the Bible and a prayer by the Senate chaplain, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris.

"In this solemn hour," he said, "in this domed shrine of each patriot's devotion, the chosen leaders of our mourning nation gather about the mortal body of the fallen leader who, with consecrated powers, scorned personal delights for the sake of statescraft poured forth wisdom and unstinted service for the America he loved."

White-haired Sen. Bricker spoke in unstinting praise. "Real leadership in unassuming manner, a true liberal, championed unpopular causes and espoused orthodox views regardless of political consequences...deep convictions, unflinching courage, a man of great faith...in himself, in his fellowman, in our kind of government, in Almighty God."

"During life," Bricker said, "our departed leader carried to himself an everlasting memorial. His services to his government and through government to his fellowman will go on and on. Many hereafter because of his ennobling example will gain inspiration to serve in the same way."

He failed to make any report of the accident.

It was listed as a hit-and-run accident.

Ike Panel Will Examine A-Wage Spat

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. — President Eisenhower's atomic energy labor relations panel arrives here tomorrow to look into the wage dispute which halted work at two atomic energy plants two days last week.

Plans for a resumption of the strike at midnight called off by the AFL Atomic Trades and Labor Council after leaders returned from a Washington conference yesterday.

The union leaders, hastily called together by Secretary of Labor Martin Durkin, voted to hold off strike plans until the panel can review the situation.

But final settlement now may be further away than ever. Roy Gouley, union official from Atlanta, said the union feels free to resume its original demand for a 15-cent hourly wage boost, 45 cents more than asked during the negotiations.

Union Carbide & Carbon Chemicals Co. had offered 3 cents and one additional paid holiday a year. Present scales range from $1.51 to $2.49.

Otherwise, the situation is about right where it was late Tuesday when 3,000 striking AFL production workers agreed to return to work and let the panel iron out the difficulties. About 6,000 AFL construction workers had honored picket lines during the two-day strike.

The strike, first production strike in the 10-year history of the plants here, did not affect the production of uranium-235 for atomic weapons. The two plants are engaged chiefly in production of radioactive isotopes (tracer atoms), used widely in medicine and industry.

Neighborhood Assists Squirrels to Move To Their New Home

CHICAGO — It was moving day and the whole neighborhood turned out to watch and to help. While the mother carried her five babies, one by one, from the old flat to the new one across the street, men of the Armistide and Burling vicinity on the North Side halted traffic.

Father danced and chattered some distance away to divert the attention of a couple of neighborhood cats.

You see, the movers were a family of squirrels, whose quarters in one hollow tree were flooded by a rainstorm. The only other available residence was in a hollow tree across the street. Human friends guarded the heavily burdened mother's route from traffic as she carried her offspring in her teeth.

Tom Ostrander, who lives next door to the squirrel's old home, gave the mother a lift in his car to see if she had left anything before settling down in the new home.

Christian Dior Suffers Setback In Fashion Drive

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Christian Dior suffered a setback in his drive for eight winners of the 1953 Miss Universe contest, a nationally televised fashion show.

The French designer shocked the fashion world with his new creations, which showed the skirt line as barely below the knee. Elsa Schiaparelli took up the challenge and lengthened her new dresses to 13 inches from the floor, even lower than last year.

Norman Hartnell, designer for Queen Elizabeth II, issued an edict that skirts would stay where they are—mid-calf. Hattie Carnegie sided with Dior.

With the aid of interpreters, I gathered these opinions on the "Battle of Hems" from the eight beauties who won screen contracts in the recent Miss Universe contest. The eight are training for the coronation in "Yankee pasha" at Universal-International.

Miss United States, Myrna Hansen of Chicago—I much prefer the skirt length at mid-calf. I like it even lower with pencil-slim dresses. Will American women go for the new Dior length? They might go for anything.

Miss Uruguay, Alicia Ibanez—I think the skirt at the middle of the calf makes for a much more elegant silhouette in street wear. But I am in favor of showing more leg—and everything in sports wear—if a girl has the figure for it. A beautiful body is an artistic thing, and it should be seen.

Miss South Africa, Ingrid Rita Mills—I am in favor of the skirt where it is—about 14 inches from the floor. If you have it any shorter, you are bound to see a girl's bony knees. And after all, all knees are bony.

Miss Norway, Synove Gulbrandsen—I like the skirt where it is, and I think other Norwegian women do too. Because we exercise more we probably have bigger feet and more muscular legs than most other women, and that length flatters us most.

Miss Australia, Maxine Morgan—If you haven't got a curved calf, the present skirt is much more flattering than a shorter one. I don't think the hemline should be changed. A girl can't be putting up her skirt and lowering it all the time.

Pennock, the first defendant to take the witness stand in the prosecution trial, was testifying Friday when the trial recessed. He was scheduled to undergo cross-examination tomorrow.

Deputy King County Coroner Mike Gray quoted Pennock's personal physician, Dr. Morris Gold, that Pennock was in an extremely nervous condition and under strain during the three- and one-half month trial. The doctor said he had been treating Pennock for insomnia.

Fulton Meets Columbia In Sedalia's Annual Girl's Softball Tourney

Town and Country Vs. United Brooms In Second Game At Center Park

Tonight's Games

8 p. m. Fulton vs. Columbia.
10 p. m. United Broom vs. Town and Country.

Sunday Scores

Fulton 10, Town and Country 6.
United Broom 9, La Monte 3.

The Fulton and Columbia girls' softball teams will clash tonight in the first game of the 2-game Girls' Softball Tournament schedule. Both teams are undefeated. In the second, the United Broom Co., Kansas City, Kas., and the Town and Country teams, both with a 1-game loss, meet at 10 p. m.

Sunday night the Fulton girls defeated the Sedalia Town and Country team by a 10-6 score, while in the second game the La Monte TNTs were eliminated by the United Broom by a score of 9-3.

C jumped into a 2-run lead in the second inning and coasted there until the fourth when Fulton came back to score four runs and take over. T-C tallied another in the fifth and third in the sixth but could not overcome the Fulton lead. Fulton had a big fling in the fifth when they scored six runs.

Theline score:
Fulton C.....020 010 40.....5 3 3
Town and Country.....0 10 3 0
Batteries: Walz and Olson; Griffith and West.

In the second game La Monte, like Town and Country, started with a lead which was later smothered. In the first inning the TNTs scored one run and held it to the fourth when United Broom swept up a seven run rally which was good for the lead never to be passed.

La Monte scored another in the fifth and one in the seventh to give them the three run tally total, while United Broom added two more in the seventh for their nine.

Line score:
United Broom 000 700 2-2 2 3 3
La Monte.....0 10 3 0 4 7
Batteries: B. Portwood and L. Portwood; I. Hughes and E. Hughes.

The loser in the Fulton-Columbia game will play the winner of the United Broom and T-C game on Wednesday night. The winner of that game will probably go for a doubleheader to play the winner of the Fulton-Columbia game.

The tournament is a double elimination.

East Baptists Vs. Tipton Tonight At Housel aPrk

The East Sedalia Baptist Church softball team will play the Tipton Baptists at 8:15 tonight at Housel Park ball diamond. It will be the second meeting of these two teams this season. The first diamond scrap went to the Sedalia aggregation 6-5.

Rev. Kelley, manager of the Tipton team, has not announced his battery, while the East Sedalia Baptists plan on using either Bob Smith or Wayne Morton on the mound against the visitors. C. L. Norman will do the receiving for the Sedalians.

In the first game played between these two teams, the score was tied 5-5 going into the seventh inning. The locals put a run across in the top of the seventh and held Tipton scoreless in the bottom half to win.

The East Baptists will be after their tenth win tonight. They have four losses for the season.

Wife's Illness Stops Career Of Amos Stagg

STOCKTON, Calif. (P)—Amos Stagg, football's grand old man, says his 63-year coaching career appears ended because of the illness of his wife Stella—"the best assistant a coach ever had."

The venerable 91-year-old mentor said today he would not return to his advisory post at Susquehanna University, Selingsgrove, Pa., due to Mrs. Stagg's health.

"My buddy, the mainstay and center of my life for 39 years, needs me," said Stagg. "I will stay by her in every way."

Mrs. Stagg, who will be 78 Friday, suffered a nervous breakdown several months ago. Her heart is also in a weakened condition.

Stagg had assisted his son, Amos Alonzo Jr., at Susquehanna since 1947, including an unbeaten 1951 season.

"I've had 63 years of coaching. If I can't have another," he explained, "it is all right. If it is God's will, so be it. I won't be faithless to my buddy. It would be nice to continue coaching, but it seems unlikely."

Mrs. Stagg made an intensive study of the game her husband helped to develop. She established a reputation as a competent scout while Stagg coached at College of the Pacific in Stockton and was known to diagram plays for him.

An All-America end at Yale, Stagg went to the University of Chicago as head of the department of athletics in 1892. He established football there and from then on, he and Pop Warner virtually invented everything from the wing-back to the man-in-motion, from the tackling dummy to the spiral pass.

Chicago retired him in 1933 when he turned 70 and Stagg moved on to College of Pacific, remaining there through 1946.

Connolly Is Tired Of Winning Titles, Will Take Vacation

RYE, N. Y. (P)—The tennis girls can relax—champion Maureen Little Mo Connolly is tired of winning championships.

"I've been traveling too much and I feel I'm over-tanned," the 18-year-old whiz from San Diego, Calif., said today. "After the Wightman Cup matches I'm going to take a week's rest. Also I'm taking a complete vacation this winter."

Little Mo and her American mates were scheduled to complete their tour of the Wightman Cup today in the Wightman Cup matches, postponed from yesterday because of rain. They need only one point to clinch, having taken a 3-0 lead Saturday.

Then while the other players, including the entire British team, head across the river for the Eastern grass court championships at South Orange, N. J., Miss Connolly plans a week's rest in Philadelphia.

Pursues Beach Ball, Wife Sees Him Drown

ST. LOUIS (P)—Ferdinand Hagemeyer, 17, of suburban Overland, drowned yesterday in the Meramec River while pursuing a beach ball he had missed.

His wife, Bernice, expecting a child, watched as two male relatives tried unsuccessfully to rescue the youth. His violent struggles broke their hold on him and he went under.

Sedalians See Dodgers Lose To Cards 1-10

More than 100 Sedalians took the special train to St. Louis Sunday, sponsored by the Pacific Cafe, to see the Cardinals and Dodgers baseball game at Busch stadium.

The all air-conditioned train was run over the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad. The M-K-T backed the passenger train down its lines in back of the Pacific Cafe for the passengers to board, and stopped there on its return.

The feature of the trip was the fact that "Dutch" Kirchoffer (who with "Ponnie" Poindexter operate the cafe which promoted the special train) became the victim of the Sedalia group. Kirchoffer, an ardent supporter of the Dodgers, had planned "big times" Sunday if the Dodgers won again. But the rooting Sedalians apparently had something to do with the upset of the day — the Cardinals won by a 10-1 score.

Apparently fearing the razzing on the return trip home, "Dutch," accompanied some friends back by motor car. "I still say they (the Dodgers) will win the pennant and the World Series, too," says "Dutch."

Matthews Finally Gets Chance To Take On British Heavy Champ

NEW YORK (P)—Harry (Kid) Matthews, persistent lad, finally is going to fight the British heavyweight champion Friday night at Seattle.

A year ago Jack Hurley's "athlete" went to London to joust with Johnny Williams, then the British champion. Matthews hurt his back or something and the fight was called off. In the meantime, Williams lost his title to Don Cockell.

Now Cockell has come to America to battle Matthews on his home grounds, a match that should draw a big house in Seattle.

Cockell whipped Williams, May 12, to win the championship. Within the year he stopped the oldtimer Tommy Farr. He also was stopped himself by Randy Turpin.

German Outruns Wes Santee In Berlin

BERLIN (P)—Werner Lueg, a fleet German, outkicked Wes Santee of Kansas, the No. 1 miler in the United States, yesterday in an international track and field meet here.

Lueg, who was third in the Olympic 1500 meters last year, was clocked in 3:52.4 for the metric mile. Santee's time was 3:52.6.

Yanks Take Up New Skill--Regular Weekend Stumbles

By JACK HAND
P Sports Writer

Another weekend stumble by the New York Yankees.

Sundays are rough days for Paul Richard's go-go boys. Two weeks ago they blew a double-header to the Yanks at Comiskey Park. Last week they tossed away another chance by splitting a double-header with Philadelphia while the Yanks broke even with Detroit.

Walt Masterson was a stumbling block yesterday, shutting out the White Sox with six hits for a 1-0 Washington victory while the Yanks watched the rain wash out their double with the St. Louis Browns. So the White Sox lost half of the game they picked up Saturday and sail trail New York by five full games.

The American League race is building up to a big showdown series at Yankee Stadium Friday, Saturday and Sunday when Chicago comes in for four big games.

Cleveland closed within seven games of the Yanks by grabbing a pair from Philadelphia 10-1 and 7-1 on the pitching of Bob Lemon and Early Wynn. Lemon now has won 15 games. Detroit continued its late surge by knocking out Boston twice 2-1 and 4-6, extending the Red Sox losing streak to eight games.

Sports Roundup--

Marty Marion Makes No Bones About His Team's Demerits

By JACK HAND
(For Gayle Talbot)

NEW YORK (P)—Marty Marion was stretched out on a couch, sipping from a tall cardboard container when two fellows walked into the St. Louis Browns' clubhouse at Yankee Stadium.

"What's this, a psychiatrist's office?" one asked. It was sort of a sick joke and Marion smiled weakly. The Browns, playing horrible ball, had just lost an 11-3 game, making four errors.

"First time I've seen your club all year," the other said. "Are they really that bad?"

Marion grinned. "This was one of our better games," he said. "We're a bad ball club and there's nothing you can do about it. We don't have anybody to bring up so we might as well face it."

During the ball game, some slow fielding had turned ordinary outs or singles into damaging triples.

"More balls have fallen safe in our outfield this year," he said. "Than ever fell in any ball park, major league or minor league. That poor Groth (center fielder Johnny Groth) has run 5,000 miles out there."

How about the St. Louis fans? Had they been rough on the Browns?

"Not too bad," said Marion. "They boo us because we have it zip."

Ranks Swell With Coaches Who Don't Coach Anymore

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 (P)—Coaches who aren't coaching—their ranks are swelling in these days of high pressure college football.

Gen. Bob Neyland, Leo (Dutch) Meyer, Ray Morrison, Howie Odell, Buddy Brothers and Bud DeGroot will be missing this fall after the latest of the annual turnovers in the profession.

The departure of Neyland, who remains Tennessee's athletic director, Meyer and Morrison left a mere handful of football's "old guard" still on the scene—men like Lou Little, Eddie Anderson, Harvey Harman, Russ McLaughry and Jess Neely.

Neyland, who made his "solid defense is the best offense" philosophy pay off with the finest record in major college football over a 27-year span (171 victories, 26 defeats, 12 ties, not including bowl games), bowed out due to failing health.

Meyer, master of the spread formation at Texas Christian, now is confining himself to the athletic directorship at the Fort Worth School where he had been head coach since 1934. Morrison, who took over at Southern Methodist in 1922 and who served at Vanderbilt, Temple and Austin College, had had enough.

Odell, Brothers and DeGroot, among the coaches who resigned under pressure last year, have gone into other lines. Now in the used car business, Odell was eased out of the University of Washington in January. DeGroot, spending the summer conducting sports clinics for the Army in Germany, was fired by New Mexico for what the school termed outspoken criticism of athletic de-emphasis.

Brothers went into business in Tulsa.

The case of Pennsylvania's George Munger is in a class apart. Last spring the successful mentor whose teams have won 79, lost 37 and tied 9 in the past 15 years, announced he was resigning effective at the end of the coming season. Munger's action followed shortly after his verbal opponent, Athletic Director Fran Murray, was ousted in the wake of a controversy over athletic policy.

What of the men who will be holding new head coaching assignments this year?

The majority of them have been promoted from assistants at the same schools where they're now in command.

George Barclay, brought from Washington and Lee last year to help convert North Carolina to the split-T, moved up following the resignation of silver-haired veteran Carl Snively. John Chierberg, former freshman tutor, succeeds Odell at Washington. Othol (Abel) Martin, under Meyer since 1946, coming to us. Usually there aren't enough people around to make the boos very loud. After all, they pay their way in and they have a right to boo if they want to. They've been on Wertz (right fielder Vic Wertz) pretty good all year. But he hasn't been playing ball for us either."

And next year? Were the Browns going to Baltimore, Kansas City, Toronto, Los Angeles?

"That's Mr. Veck's department," said Marion. "I've got enough to do worrying about this year, let alone next. Right now Bill is in Los Angeles but he might be in Honolulu tomorrow. You never know."

"All I know about next year is that I've got another year to go on a two-year contract. The worst part is that we don't have much coming up to help us next year. The best thing for Bill would be to get some place where he'd have a little money to work with and then start right at the bottom with a rebuilding program, like they did up in Boston."

For about a month we were going pretty good. That was when we'd get a pitcher who could last five or six innings. Then we'd bring in Satch (Satchel Paige) and he'd hold them. But we can't have many pitchers that can go six innings and Paige doesn't seem to have it any more. Sort of lost his zip."

Cards Enjoy Blasting Bums For a Change

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The St. Louis Cardinals had a feat yesterday after two days of famine against the Brooklyn Dodgers, blasting out 12 hits, three of them home runs for a 10-1 victory over the National League leaders.

Harvey Haddix was in excellent shape, holding Brooklyn to six hits for his 13th triumph. With the game he became the first National league lefthander to defeat the Dodgers three times this year.

Steve Bilko, injured Saturday night, and Red Schoendienst, also forced out that night with a headache, weren't feeling too well for the Sunday game at Busch Stadium, but they did a good job of concealing it.

Steve drove in four runs and Red three and each had a homer. Ray Jablonski had the other four-bagger.

Bilko's bloop sent the ball the farthest distance and came with the bases loaded to climax a five-run assault on Brooklyn's Jim Hughes in the seventh.

Schoendienst, who also had a double and single, boosted his league-leading batting average to .341.

Rain washed out a scheduled doubleheader between the Browns and Yankees at New York.

Major Leagues Show Top-notch Fielding

NEW YORK (P)—The fielding was really major league in the major leagues yesterday.

In the 11 games played, only eight errors were made out of a total 845 chances. The defense was perfect in five of the tilts.

Overall, major league players accounted for 390 putouts, 247 assists and with the eight miscues it made for a remarkable .991 fielding average.

Folder Tells of Wheat Program

Notice of farm wheat acreage allotments, together with four-page folder, telling how the wheat quota program works and what a "Yes" vote and a "No" vote in the August 14 referendum mean to Pettis County farmers have been mailed to growers by the county PMA office.

The folder contains, in a short clearly-written form, information which every wheat farmer should have before casting his ballot in the August 14 referendum.

Wheat producers eligible to vote in the referendum will receive a notice of their eligibility and place where the vote should be cast.

Owners and tenants on farms having a wheat allotment of more than 15 acres, or who intend to sow more than 15 acres of wheat for 1954 harvest will be eligible to vote.

Voters who are not certain about eligibility to vote should get in touch with the county PMA office.

205 Oats Made 50 Bushels At Wagenknecht's

Warns Against Contracting For Delivery

Some calves are being contracted in Missouri for fall delivery. The price range is 14 to 20 cents per pound for calves of the same general grade. With the recent upswing in price, some folks may think it is time to sell before the price drops again. They need to do some figuring, believes E. S. Matteson, extension livestock specialist.

Contracting is generally not good business for the average farmer, and it looks as if it would be more uncertain than usual this season.

What calves at weaning time and yearlings may bring is also more uncertain than usual. Prospects for a corn crop in the cattle feeding section are excellent as of now.

If normal conditions prevail until the crop is safe, feeders are going to buy cattle and in general they won't buy them until then. One of the reasons for the low prices for stocker and feeder cattle has been that there were lots of cattle and not much outlet except to the packer. With outlet buying competition, they naturally sold at low prices.

The cow owner who has pasture should be making some gains and they will bring more dollars than if they are sold out of season. With yearlings, and especially those that will be only in stocker condition, the situation is the same.

If grass is available so that they will make some gain, there should be a better market for them than if sold now. In the area where use of one to two pounds of cottonseed meal or soybean meal to cows with calves is 1 1/2 to two pounds to yearlings is advisable, especially if you are in the area where cottonseed meal is being sold at reduced prices. Then, too, in the drought area or where the grasses are the only pasture, keep the mineral mixture before the cattle.

Spraying for fly control is more important than it has been in the past. It can certainly make for more gains with poor pasture, better coat of hair, and more money in the pocket on sale day.

Feeder cattle sale associations should take cattle to the limit of the capacity of the pens, with a special effort to get the better kinds.

We are on buyers' market instead of the sellers' market we have had continuously from the time the sales started up to last fall. Under these conditions we want to offer good cattle in larger numbers and make a special effort to attract more buyers. There is no reason to get excited about the cattle business.

The man who has too many cows for his feed supply should cull. On the other hand those who have a setup that will justify more cows should go ahead with an increase. Just be sure that there is more pasture available than normally needed and the same is true for winter roughness.

Farmers who have weighty calves that are really fat at weaning time may want to send them to market instead of putting them in the sales.

Interest Ups In Missouri Irrigation

By HERMAN HALL
MU Extension Agriculture Engineer

Since last year's drought there has been more interest in irrigation in Missouri than for several years. There were about 100 systems in operation last year and more are being added. Most of the interest is in the southern part of the state along the many small creeks and rivers which flow the year around.

Irrigation will not be a general practice in this state within the near future due to sufficient rainfall to produce crops in the average years, the high cost of irrigation, and the scarcity of sufficient water over most of the state.

Irrigation costs are high and considerable increase in yields must be obtained to make it profitable. And even with a supply of water easily available most farmers can use their capital and labor to better advantage by adopting other needed farming practices in increase yields.

Most farmers interested in irrigation want to irrigate improved pasture alfalfa. The crops that respond most to additional water. Vegetable crops have been profitable irrigation in Missouri for a number of years. Where water is available, irrigation of farm gardens is both practical and profitable.

The lowest irrigation costs can be obtained from pumping water from a river or creek onto land along the stream. Here are original equipment cost will likely be from $40 to $8 per acre, and the yearly operating costs from $15 to $25 per acre.

Where deep wells must be drilled or reservoirs constructed the original costs will probably be $250 per acre or more.

The average farm pond is not a dependable supply for extended irrigation. A 1/4-acre pond eight foot deep will hold only one acre foot of water. Half of this will be lost by seepage and evaporation, leaving only one half foot of water available for irrigation.

Wheat irrigated only one acre during a dry year. Sprinkler irrigation using portable aluminum pipes is most commonly used in Missouri since it does not require any land leveling. Surface irrigation can be used on some land where sufficient level-irrigation is done to insure an even distribution of water. The costs with either type will in many cases be about the same.

With sprinkler irrigation, a flow of 5-10 gallons per minute per acre to be irrigated is required. This would require 200 to 400 gallons of water per minute to irrigate 40 acres. At this flow, the area to be irrigated will be covered with an inch of water weekly.

A bulletin on irrigation, entitled "Supplemental Irrigation for Missouri Regions of Similar Rainfall," can be obtained by writing the Mailing Room, Jesse Hall, University of Missouri, Columbia.

County Agent Has Hay List At Office

County agents over the mid-west have supplied the Missouri Extension Service with its list of available hay supplies in their areas. A copy of this list can be seen at the county agent's office at 118 1/2 West Third in Sedalia.

A suggestion has been made that a group of farmers decide what hay they need and then send one of their number to buy it.

The list above includes hay from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, North and South Dakota and Wyoming. Hay quotations range from $25 to $30 per ton for clover and alfalfa in Illinois to $20 per ton loaded in trucks in South Dakota. These South Dakota locations are about 650 miles away.

On another trip to Bolivar I saw the same thing in Benton County. I thought at first that maybe our pastures hadn't been clipped because of the drought but eastern Johnson County and Benton County are about as dry as we are.

I guess that most of the difference may be that we haven't been pushing pasture mowing by talking about it at meetings or in news stories.

At John Wagenknecht's farm the other day we were out in a pasture looking for a trench silo location. John mentioned that he would clip the weeds but that the grasshoppers were feeding there instead of in the corn across the fence. I suggested that he mow most of the pasture but leave the weeds standing in the center and then spray that strip to kill the hoppers that had concentrated there.

Lists Information On Wheat Marketing Quota Referendum

By Merle Vaughan
Here are the facts on the wheat marketing quota referendum to be held on Aug. 14.
If you vote "yes," you vote for:
1. Price support, at 90 percent parity for 1954 crop—About $2.21 per bushel at current relationships.

2. Growing fewer acres—perhaps up to 20 per cent less than in recent years.

3. Selling fewer bushels but at a price reflecting 80 percent of parity. This price will be considerably higher than if quotas are voted out.

4. Requesting government, through a storage and loan program, to cooperate in maintaining prices.

5. Greater expense to tax payers than if prices supported at 50 per cent parity.

If you vote "no," you vote for:
1. Present supports at 50 percent parity for the 1950 crop—About $1.23 per bushel at current relationships.

2. Growing as many acres and bushels as you are able to grow in 1954.

3. Selling as many bushels as you produce in 1954 at the open market price. Loans at 90 percent parity will be made only to those who comply with acreage allotments.

4. Requesting government to discontinue its present high support program.

5. Less expense to tax payers than if prices are supported at 90 percent.

Additional Information
Recent legislation raised the national minimum acreage allotment from 55 to 62 million acres. It also postponed the date for voting from July 25 to August 14.

Wheat producers growing less than 15 acres with a normal production of less than 200 bushels are not subject to quota provisions and are not eligible to vote in the referendum.

Every wheat grower affected by quotas will be notified if his individual allotment before the referendum is held.

If quotas are voted the penalty for exceeding the allotment will be a price per bushel equal to 45 percent of the May 1, 1954, parity price.

It is more difficult to get the older woman to eat a well-balanced diet, particularly if she lives alone. In that case, she probably doesn't have much of an incentive to prepare a well balanced meal.

Or she may have formed a prejudice to certain foods and think they are not good for her. Most of all, she likes her independence and doesn't want someone telling her what she should eat.

But the older woman should remember that she can never "retire" from the responsibility for eating the kinds and amounts of food she needs. Being poorly nourished is often the reason for complaints that drag an older person down such as a chronic tired feeling, a gloomy outlook on life and anxiety over small things.

All life long, whether old or young, you need food that contains protein, minerals, vitamins and calories. And you need them in the right amounts. Call at your county extension office and ask for "A Missouri Plan for Good Eating." This chart gives the five main food groups and tell the amounts you need daily from each group for good health and well being.

Most Farms Here Keep Poultry

Nearly 80 per cent of Missouri's 230,000 farm families keep poultry, says Ted Joule, extension poultry marketing specialist. However, the average size flock is under 100 birds and total number of hens on farms is less than any time during the past 30 years. And in spite of high production per bird, Missouri has dropped from first place in the nation in egg production in the early 20s to ninth place today.

During the early 30's Missouri poultrymen enjoyed a large share of egg market in eastern cities. Today, this market has almost ceased to exist. Reflected in egg prices, poultrymen received from seven to ten cents less than the national average for their eggs and rank 44th in price received from eggs.

However, there are some bright spots in the picture. One of the brightest is the demand for quality eggs. One Missouri city reports that 80 percent of all their retail eggs are sold on a quality basis.

Prices during the first six months of 1953 in another of our large cities showed a five cent spread between grade A and unclassified eggs. In June 1, the spread was about six cents per dozen and by June 30 had increased to 13 cents.

One of the disturbing problems, though, is the drop in egg quality during the summer months. Dealers report a 30 to 50 percent drop in number of grade A eggs received from May to June of this year. To meet their commitments, they had to purchase out-of-state eggs.

Additional quality egg markets are being established in Missouri.

Legion Head Flies To Europe for Tour

NEW YORK (AP)—Lewis K. Gough, national commander of the American Legion, flew to Europe yesterday for a tour of England, France, Germany, Italy and Switzerland.

He said he wanted to look into the psychological warfare program and American information services. The purpose, he said, was "to further unity and strengthen a unified defense." He did not elaborate on this.

Although the trip was unofficial and primarily "for the legion," he said, it was also a "fact-finding tour which President Eisenhower requested I make last November."

Two Brothers Feel Remorse At Gun Spree

MANSFIELD, Ohio, Aug. 3.—Two brothers who terrorized Mansfield by driving around shooting at people were remorseful when they sobered up in Mansfield jail, Chief of Detectives F. Bruce Friday said today.

"They don't know themselves why they did it," said Friday, who questioned John Brown, 27, and J. T. Brown, 33, Friday said he'd probably file charges today of "pointing and discharging firearms."

One person was injured in the shooting spree Saturday night. Howard Mason, 29, lost four toes when he was hit in the foot by a shotgun blast. He is recovering in a hospital.

Police got dozens of calls from citizens who said the two men were cruising about firing random shots.

The brothers finally stopped in a downtown parking lot and approached Patrolman Glenn Adams. One of them put the muzzle of an ancient shotgun against Adams' chest and pulled the trigger. The gun did not go off. "The gun was so old I'd be afraid to fire it," Friday said.

Adams called other officers and in the struggle Mason, a bystander, was shot.

Friday said the two brothers, both employed at Wilkins Air Depot at nearby Shelby, went to different parties Saturday evening. Friday said their story wasn't very clear, but apparently one of them got in an argument at his party, picked up the other brother, got their guns, and started out with a noisy notion of revenge.

As they drove past the home of Robert McDaniel, McDaniel yelled at them to slow down. They started shooting at McDaniel, who ducked behind a tree. Then they drove around firing at other people.

"It was just a case of two persons who had been drinking," said Friday. "They haven't been in any trouble before. They said they would give anything to undo what they did."

Tells of Holdup, Woman Abduction Outside Mobile

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 3.—The companion of a 32-year-old mother of three children told police that two armed men robbed her and abducted the woman at riflepoint on a lonely road near here.

John A. Faulk of Prichard, Ala., described the incident to Police Chief E. C. Anderson of Prichard and Sheriff Herman Blake of Mobile County.

Both officers said last night the woman, Mrs. Nell Williams, had not yet been found.

They said Faulk told them he and Mrs. Williams drove to a lonely unpaved road early yesterday and that when he walked around to the rear of the car he was confronted by two men armed with rifles.

One of the men robbed him of his wallet containing about $75, Faulk was quoted, and the other searched Mrs. Williams away at riflepoint.

The officers further quoted Faulk as saying he heard an automobile engine start and that the man with him left and drove off with his companion and Mrs. Williams.

The officers said the woman's husband, R. L. Williams, told them the last time he saw his wife was Saturday night, when she left home to go to Chickasaw, Ala.

Bolivia Launches Second Phase of War Against Big Fortunes

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Aug. 3.—Bolivia's revolutionary government has launched the second phase of its fight against the nation's big fortunes, President Victor Paz Estenssoro's regime yesterday began breaking up large landholdings and parceling them out to the peasants.

The government took over Bolivia's tin mines, the major export industry, last October. The land distribution had been demanded by the powerful labor federation, major backers of Paz Estenssoro's regime.

Return of Prisoners Brings Great Period of Heartbreak

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The greatest period of heartbreak in the Korean War starts this week.

For the slow process of returning American prisoners of war must inevitably bring sadness to more homes than it does joy.

This is because the last Department of Defense casualty report listed more than 11,000 soldiers as captured or missing, but the enemy admits having only 3,313 American captives.

Gen. Mark Clark thinks the Reds haven't told the full story—that they hold more of our troops prisoner than they have yet said. Whether they do or not, the probability is that most of the soldiers officially listed as missing are dead.

That is the blunt fact of any war in which both sides exchange information on the number of their prisoners. The majority of those still listed as "missing in action" will never return.

The percentage of dead will certainly be higher in such a savage war as that fought in Korea. Many of the missing died upon the battlefields and were buried by peasants in unmarked graves. Hundreds and perhaps thousands of helpless American prisoners were slaughtered by the enemy during retreats. Hundreds and perhaps thousands of others froze or starved to death in forced marches north.

It will be years before the final toll will be figured. And since the enemy still holds a vast portion of Korea, the fate of many soldiers will never be known—"Missing in action" forever.

But, judging from the experience of previous wars, the present estimate of slightly more than 25,000 battle dead will almost certainly be increased to more than 30,000.

This means the candle of hope that has burned in thousands of American households for the return of a missing son or father will be extinguished in the next few months. The tragedy is that many hearts will go on blindly hoping and hoping year after year. That is the greatest cruelty of war.

Burglars Observe Honor System Signs

DENVER (AP)—Apparently there is honor among some thieves.

Burglars broke into an auto wash garage here yesterday. They did not touch four jars crammed with coins over displays of peanuts and cookies. A sign nearby said: "Honor system."

But they broke open a cigarette vending machine and took an undetermined amount of money.

—for those behind never to know in their lifetimes the fate of someone missing they held dear.

But as the tension mounts unbearable in some homes, glad relief will flood others with each freed batch of prisoners.

How should these returning men be treated? A handful may have actually defected to the Communist side during their long imprisonment in order to gain better treatment. More may be confused, doubtful, or feel resentfully that the nation demanded too great a sacrifice of them.

It is normal for combat men to feel a bit angry about the harsh living of the homefront when they first get back. And it is quite likely some POWs secretly resent the fact that their friends at home never had it so good while they themselves never had it so bad. That is only human.

But most of these men will come back to a hero's welcome in their old neighborhood or home town, and the warmth of that welcome probably will determine how they feel.

It is unfair and unwise, however, to prod a returned prisoner with questions and platitudes of his attitudes unless he feels like talking about his experiences. Many men back from a war cannot tell what is locked within their hearts because they feel that people who have never shared their ordeal cannot fully understand it.

They have undergone a terrible winter of the spirit, and they will thaw only in their own time. You cannot hurry them.

The main thing is to let them know how glad you are they are back, how willing you are to give them any help they need, and let them alone if they want to be alone. What most prisoners want is to feel free.

Sanity Hearing Set For Former Actress

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A sanity hearing is scheduled Wednesday for former actress Joan Berry, who in 1946 won a paternity suit from Charlie Chaplin.

Commitment papers were filed after her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Berry, and Atty. Joseph Scott visited her in General Hospital. Miss Berry had entered the hospital voluntarily last Thursday after she was found wandering barefooted in nearby Torrance.

Chaplin has been paying her $100 a month to help support Carol Ann Berry, now 9.

Ex-Governor Dies As Plane Falls Apart

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Aug. 3.—A private plane fell apart and crashed into a wooded hillside yesterday, killing a former Governor of Maine and two of his friends.

The dead were William Tudor Gardner, 61, of Bath, Me., and Boston, hero of a famous World War II exploit and Maine's chief executive from 1929 to 1932.

Edward E. Chase, 60, of Cape Elizabeth, Me., a state senator, investment broker and brother of author Mary Ellen Chase.

Edwin S. Burr, 60, of South Portland, Me., a Portland wholesaler and grocer.

The three long-time friends were flying home in Gardner's plane after attending a reunion of the 56th Pioneer Infantry Association at Shamokin, Pa. They served with the group in World War I.

About 13 miles north of this eastern-central Pennsylvania city, the plane, flying at 9,000 feet, fell apart. Rain and heavy clouds were reported in the area.

Gardner, a colonel in World War II, won the Legion of Merit for exploits in Italy.

He was 51 when he and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, now commanding the 8th Army in Korea, made a daring and hazardous trip into German-held Rome before American forces invaded Italy in 1942.

In full uniform, except for caps, they landed from a British submarine, motored to Rome and spent 20 hours under the Germans' noses in conferences with Marshal Pietro Badoglio. They gained a pledge of loyalty to the Allies and information that vitally affected the course of the war.

His Car Is Stripped Of Tomahawks, Rattles

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Aug. 3.—Charles Fingirich of Washington, D. C., told police someone broke into his car over the weekend and took 72 Indian tomahawks and 72 Indian rattles.

Fingirich did not list his occupation. Officers presumed, however, he was a novelty salesman.

Polygamy Town Children Get First City Trip

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 3.—The children of Short Creek, Arizona's polygamy colony, had their first look at a city yesterday.

Officers evacuated the 152 youngsters and their 38 mothers in buses after Sheriff Frank Porter said he heard the men of the community plotting to take their families away from Short Creek after being released from jail on bond.

Authorities raided the polygamy colony a week ago Sunday. Thirty-one men and nine women were jailed.

The children who were brought here yesterday appeared wide-eyed and enthusiastic on their arrival. They stood in awe of the tall downtown buildings.

For most, it was the first time they had seen neon lights, pavements or modern buildings.

State welfare officers hurried them off to foster homes, where they will remain until juvenile court officers decide their futures.

Minutes after Arizona authorities removed the children from Short Creek, 31 men and 9 women freed from Kingman jail on bond began to return home.

Drought Is Emphasized At State Fair Meeting

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—The current drought was emphasized again at a weekend meeting of the New Mexico State Fair Board.

Rancher John Morrow told fellow board members that he sold a cow last week for $6.52. In normal times it would bring $97.

"My gosh," exclaimed Board Chairman Clyde Tingley, "I paid $1 for a steak at the butcher's only yesterday."

Dior Reminds World He Has Done Away With The Corset

PARIS (AP)—Christian Dior says that in all the fuss over his shortened skirts an important subject has been overlooked. He's done away with corsets.

"For the first time I have done away with corsets, even for dance dresses," he said in an article for the Paris Press.

"I have often heard men complain that in dancing, they couldn't feel a living form under women's corsets."

Dior's shortened skirts caused a sensation in fashion circles last week. He told the Paris newspaper women were already beginning to shorten their hemlines before he decided last May to shorten skirts this fall.

"Revolution was in the air," he said. "I noticed in the streets that women were slyly beginning to shorten their hems."

Dior claimed also that he had broken with waist seams and cut his dresses in one piece, on princess lines.

"I've wanted to do away with belts for two years, and now I've done it," he said.

Chemist Uses Spray To Freeze Rattler

POINT MUGU, Calif., Aug. 3.—John Tabor, a chemist at the Navy's air missile test center, stepped outside his laboratory and spotted a four-foot rattlesnake.

He couldn't find a stick but his chemical knowledge provided a substitute. He went back into his laboratory, got the carbon dioxide fire extinguisher and sprayed the snake. That froze it stiff. Then he carried it inside and severed the head.

General's Son Will Be Married In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Maj. William D. Clark, son of Gen. Mark Clark, and pretty Mrs. Audrey Claire Loflin of New Orleans will be married today.

Young Clark, who will have his famous father as best man, met the divorcee and former amateur swimming star at a party a year ago.

Gen. Clark, United Nations commander in the Far East, and Mrs. Clark flew to New Orleans from Tokyo to attend the wedding of their only son, an infantry instructor at Ft. Benning, Ga.

The couple will be married at the Holy Name of Jesus Catholic Church on the campus of Loyola University. Mrs. Loflin was married previously in a civil ceremony. Her marriage and divorce are not recognized, however, by the Catholic Church. Divorced persons normally cannot remarry in a Catholic ceremony.

Maj. Clark, 28, and his blonde, 25-year-old bride will honeymoon in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The general and Mrs. Clark will leave tonight for Washington, where he will attend military conferences.

Clark said yesterday at a news conference that he hoped "to take off my shoes and rest a while" before returning to Tokyo.
